

Abstract

The invention provides a method of assessing a grade of vascular injury and a method of screening a medicament for vascular injury. The method of assessing a grade of vascular injury is characterized by including determination of PTX3 level in a test sample.